CIS119DP Database Maintenance Plan

Name	Chris Tjon

Draft (5% of Total Class Grade) — Grade

		Grade
Format & Spelling	Missing coversheet with title, author and date. Incorrect format for plan.
Content	These are good real-world recommendations, but not a maintenance plan. Remember, you must let me know how, what, how often you will monitor. Number 6 is not correct. I think you meant log files and not log buffers.	80%
Recommendations	How will you check if the database is up? What about space? There are many items missing.
Business Savvy	You need to convince me, your manager, that you have the right approach to DB administration. That you are proactive and conservative. That you know how databases break and how to watch for those failures. You are a Junior DBA and need to assure me that you will always work with the Senior DBA before implementing changes

Final Paper (10% of Total Class Grade) — Grade

Format & Spelling	Good Spelling and Format.
Content	You content is very good. There is a lot of substance here. You monitor and track too many events. Many are really of no importance such as type of transactions or count of transactions, but this is better than monitoring too little. Your ideas on backup and recovery were right on the mark. I enjoyed the section on communication practices. The conclusion was very strong.	100%
Recommendations	I did not find how you would proactively manage and monitor space. You cannot do it all by trying to predict usage patterns. You need a script that alerts before you actually run out.
Business Savvy	Your business tone is very strong and positive. Congratulations I believe that you are ready to manage your first production database, ASSETP.
